Prize for best student in MSc in Environmental Engineering 2011

Although it took me a while to decide to join the MSc in Environmental Engineering and leave my previous job, it has been an amazing journey. Returning to University as part of such an international group of students with very diverse backgrounds has been a real privilege and loads of fun.

The course helped me to broaden my knowledge about different environmental topics but also to strengthen my own ideas, developing new skills and giving me the confidence to change the direction of my career. Good academic results helped to stay focused and have been a great motivation throughout.

I chose my dissertation topic based on my interest in water and the interaction between people and their surrounding aquatic environment, analyzing the WFD implementation and its potential to improve environmental management. After I finished the course, I secured a graduate position for a leading company in the water sector in Scotland, so all I can say is thank you to Strathclyde University staff and all my classmates for all your support and so many good moments.
