West of Scotland Meeting for Teachers of Chemistry 2021

Online meeting, Tuesday 8th June 2021, 4-5:30pm

Introduction

The West of Scotland meeting for Teachers of Chemistry normally runs in January each year, with a significant component of hands-on lab chemistry. The meeting did not run as normal this year due to public health restrictions, so we have assembled a short programme of speakers for an interim online gathering to be held this summer. The meeting will consist of a mixture of short talks and discussion sessions, and is free to attend.

Speakers

Dr Kristy Turner (University of Manchester): Why do students find balancing equations difficult?

Dr Jane Essex (University of Strathclyde): What will next year's probationary chemistry teachers have been able to do during their PGDE?

Registration

To register an interest in the meeting, please send an email to chemistry-teacherscpd@strath.ac.uk and you will be sent login details shortly before the meeting is due to start.
