

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Strathclyde Law Review would like to personally thank every member of staff at the Law School and the Student Union whom were able to provide advice and support to our staff throughout the year. Without their help this year's publication process would have been far more complicated and much less enjoyable.

We would like to extend our thanks to Lesley Malarkey for helping us to secure funding from the Alumni fund for this year's edition. To receive funding directly from the University of Strathclyde is incredibly encouraging and without this financial support the Strathclyde Law Review would never have achieved so much this year.

Finally, the Strathclyde Law Review would like to thank every single member of staff who has worked on this most recent edition of our publication. The enthusiasm and dedication that has been consistently shown by our staff is the reason that our publication has been so successful. We have all worked tirelessly alongside each other throughout the year to create something that should be, without any doubt, a source of immense pride for everyone involved and so congratulations to all.
