Our gratitude goes especially to Nicole Busby, the Acting Head of the Law School, whose guidance helped pave the way for the successful publication of this issue. We would also like to thank Rebecca Zahn, Mary Munro, Stephanie Switzer, and Aileen McHarg, who gave their time to reviewing the articles.

We would like to extend our thanks to Lisa Neilson and Morag Crawford for their administration of the Law Review's account. Their kind assistance over the last year has been crucial to the success of this publication. A special thanks also goes to Kirsty Stewart, who has updated the Law Review's webpage on a regular basis. This work has been instrumental to ensure the wider promotion and distribution of our work.

The Editorial Board would like to express our gratitude to Eva Dolgyra for her design of the new logo. We were particularly impressed with the new design and it is our hope that this logo will become a symbol of the Strathclyde Law Review for many years to come.

Our Editors have worked tirelessly over the last few months to prepare this issue, and it has been a fantastic effort of teamwork and co-operation. Congratulations are in order for the impressive dedication of everyone involved in this publication.
