What classes are available to me?

- You can select from a wide range of classes that cater to a range of abilities, from beginners to more experienced psychology students. You must take 60 credits which equates to 3 classes. These classes do not all have to be psychology classes.
- An up-to-date list of available psychology classes can be found here: <https://www.strath.ac.uk/humanities/psychologicalscienceshealth/psychology/studywithus/internationalstudents/> Simply click on the links to view the class statements. Classes run only during semester 1 OR semester 2 so you must take this into account when selecting classes.
- The university class catalogue contains a list of every available psychology class. Some classes do not run every year and so it is better to use the above link to select classes to ensure you are not disappointed.

Which classes should I choose?

- You should take into account your level of previous experience with psychology. Try to select classes that match your current level of study. If you have not taken any psychology classes before then you should take a level 1 or perhaps level 2 class. Level 3 classes will require background knowledge.

- You can figure out the level of any psychology class from the class code: level 1 classes start C81xx; level 2 classes start C82xx, level 3 classes start C83xx, etc.
- Visiting students are not permitted to select level 4 classes because of the pre-requisites for entry to these classes. Therefore, you cannot select classes with a class code beginning C84xx
- Use the class statements: on the website (<http://www.strath.ac.uk/humanities/schoolofpsychologicalscienceshealth/psychology/internationalstudy/visitingstudents/>) you will find links to every class statement. These documents provide an outline of teaching and assessment in the class that should give a good indication of whether the class is appropriate for you or not.
- Be aware that if you select classes from different levels, e.g. one level 2 class and two level 3 classes, there is a possibility that there will be a timetable clash. If you select classes from the same level, e.g. three level 3 classes, there will be no such timetable clash.
- If you are still unsure, get in touch with the academic advisor for international psychology students, Dr Kellyanne Findlay: kellyanne.findlay@strath.ac.uk

Can I change my classes?

- All students are asked to complete a curriculum choice form/learning agreement prior to arrival at Strathclyde. This is a provisional list of your selected classes and can be changed if necessary.
- You can change classes in the first two weeks of the semester through our online portal 'Pegasus'. It is much better, however, to make sensible and informed choices before you arrive because changing classes once term has begun can be very disruptive.
- Occasionally, it is necessary to change classes because you may discover that the class you have chosen is too advanced, replicates a class you have already taken at your home university, or is not available. It is important to make staff aware of this as early as possible so that changes can be made without disrupting your studies too much.

How will I be assessed?

- Most level 1, 2 and 3 psychology classes use a mixture of continuous assessment (practical report/essay etc.) and final exam.
- A general rule of thumb is that elements of continuous assessment contribute 30-40% towards the final mark and the exam contributes 60-70% towards the final mark.
- On arrival, you will be provided with guides to essay and report writing to help you complete coursework.
- There are two exam periods at the University of Strathclyde: December for semester 1 classes, and May for semester 2 classes.
- You should ensure that you are available to take the end of term exams at Strathclyde. Please do not return home before the exams having not told anyone.
- If you cannot be here in December/May to sit the end of term exam please notify Kellyanne Findlay (kellyanne.findlay@strath.ac.uk) when you arrive at Strathclyde to discuss the possibility of an alternative assessment. Note that this cannot be guaranteed.
