- external applicants seeking appointment to the University Court or committees

Who we are

The University of Strathclyde is the organisation responsible for your personal data in terms of data protection legislation (the Controller).

Information we collect and use about you

External applicants seeking appointment to the University Court or committees

- biographical information, contact details, CV, and covering letter;
- education, employment and training;
- Register of Interests;
- references; and
- equality monitoring form.

Trustees and Co-opted Members

When you become a Trustee or Co-opted Member we will hold personal information about you from your application and thereafter any relevant additional information required to manage your relationship and engagement with the University. This will include:

- information provided in your application; and
- other additional information added during the course of your term of office.

Equality monitoring data is not shared with any individual involved in shortlisting or appointment decisions and will only be used only for anonymised statistical analyses. You have the option whether or not to provide this information (or have the option to choose 'prefer not to say').

Why we require this information and our lawful basis

We require information as part of the recruitment and application process and, for appointed Members, to then manage your relationship with the University. This includes:

- ensuring you are a fit and proper person to hold a Trustee or Co-opted Member position;

- administrative and financial management purposes;
- legal obligations and adherence to the requirements of good governance;
- health and safety;
- facilities management, including IT provision/management;
- emergency planning and business continuity;
- ensuring equality of opportunity and equality monitoring; and
- information necessary to ensure compliance with the Scottish Code of Good Higher Education Governance.

Certain information, such as contact details and confirmation of fitness for office, have to be provided to enable both the University and Trustees/Co-opted Members to fulfil their respective duties. If you do not provide the required information, this will hinder the University's ability to fulfil its obligations under charity and company law.

Lawful bases

Depending on the circumstances we may rely on the following lawful bases:

- public task
- contract
- legal obligation
- consent

Where we process 'special category', e.g. information relating to racial/ethnic origin, religion, health/disability we will usually process it on the basis of either: legal obligation and substantial public interest (equality of opportunity or treatment), or consent and explicit consent.

Disclosing your information

Court Members are provided with a temporary Strathclyde IT account and email address in order to access University systems. Court Members can use personal email addresses for communications relevant to membership of Court. However, email addresses will not be hidden in such communications and other members and attendees will therefore have access to these. If you do not wish your personal email address to be available in this manner you can opt to use the Strathclyde email address provided.

External applicants seeking appointment to the University Court or committees

The University will only share your data with third parties to the extent that this is essential for the completion of the recruitment process, e.g.:

- external recruitment agencies, with whom the University is working in partnership;
- contacting referees, if you are identified as the preferred candidate (or sooner if you have consented for this to happen);
- due diligence checks to confirm that you are a fit and proper person to undertake the role of Trustee.

Trustees and Co-opted Members

The University may share your personal data externally. Often this is where we have a statutory or legal obligation to provide information to external organisations e.g.: funders; regulators; pension administrators; insurers; auditors; investment management partners, or other organisations in the course of funding, accrediting or reviewing the quality of University activities.

In addition to those listed above we also may share your data when required with the following:

- relevant UK government departments, e.g. HMRC, Home Office, UK Visas and Immigration;
- Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA). For more information on what HESA does with your personal data see the HESA Staff Collection Notice;
- relevant authorities upon request, e.g. police enquiries or in emergency situations;
- Scottish Funding Council;
- Scottish Government and Scottish Ministers;

- research funding bodies or bodies managing financial administration/monitoring of research funds, including research councils and EU funding bodies;
- professional, statutory and regulatory bodies e.g. Scottish Public Services Ombudsman, Office of the Scottish Information Commissioner; Information Commissioner's Office; Health & Safety Executive;
- affiliated external providers of University facilities/services you have chosen to utilise/receive; and
- any other authorised third party to whom the University has a legal/contractual obligation to share data with.

The names of Trustees will be made public along with photos (where provided) and some professional biographical information provided or approved by Trustees themselves. In addition, the University is required under the Scottish Code of Good Higher Education Governance to:

- maintain and publish a register of members' interests;
- collect and publish information on the balance of skills, attributes and experience of Court members to inform future recruitment and regular assessment of the balance of skills across the membership of Court; and
- publish minutes of the proceedings of Court meetings, suitably redacted, which may include contributions from individual Trustees.

Transferring data internationally

Some personal data may be transferred outside the UK, for example:

- information published on the University's website is accessible internationally;
- the University may engage third parties to provide systems/services which are hosted outside the UK;
- in emergency situations for Trustees or Co-opted Members located outside the UK we may transfer data internationally where it is necessary to ensure your vital interests, e.g. contacting next of kin in medical emergencies; or
- if the University is engaged with international partners or organisations where regulatory requirements in other jurisdictions dictate a need for sharing of data on the University's legal Trustees.

Whenever we transfer data internationally we will make sure that appropriate safeguards are in place to protect your information and your rights to privacy.

How long your information is retained

Records containing the personal data of Trustees and Co-opted Members will be held by the University for a period of six years following the termination of an appointment. However, records documenting the conduct of business of a statutory committee (including agendas, minutes and supporting papers) must be held for the lifetime of the institution. These will contain the names of meeting attendees as well as a record of any personal contributions made at the meeting. More information on the retention of records relating to 'University Governance' are available on our website

<https://www.strath.ac.uk/whystrathclyde/universitygovernance/accesstoinformation/recordsmanagement/recordsretention/>

Data is required as part of a statutory or contractual requirement or obligation

Certain information has to be provided to enable both the University and Trustees/Co-opted Members to fulfil their respective duties and contractual obligations. This includes information necessary to be appointed and ongoing management of the relationship, including obligations regarding fitness for office, register of interests and other obligations under the Scottish Code of Good Higher Education Governance.

If you do not provide the required information, this will hinder the University's ability to fulfil its obligations under charity and company law. This may also mean both parties cannot meet their contractual obligations.
